KDS: A Socio-economic Research Organization and a Resource Centre for the Development of States

Kerala Development Society-Delhi (KDS-Delhi) is a socio-economic research organization and a resource centre for the development of States. A group of development professionals from multi-disciplinary background formed this organization in 2002 as a registered society under the Societies Registration Act XXI of 1860. KDS has been carrying out several activities which facilitate the development of various Indian states. Its various forms of intervention include action research, research studies, seminars and workshops. KDS has emerged as an international centre for research and promotion of self help groups (SHGs) and local government institutions. The organization is being managed by a group of well-experienced development professionals.

Mission

As a national organization, KDS strives to be recognized as a progressive and proactive body promoting international human development standards.

Vision

KDS envisions a future where each and every individual or group is able to get the benefit of social and economic growth and participate in the development process. In addition, KDS works towards a future where all Indian States register faster growth rate and achieve regional balance.

Genesis

A group of professionals, mainly development specialists, from Kerala settled in Delhi joined hands for creating a professional forum in Delhi. The major objectives of the forum were to deliberate on various development issues of Kerala and other Indian States and to establish an organization to promote high human development standards among various States. The forum was coordinated by Dr. Jacob John, an economist with a long experience in working with national and international organizations. In the first phase of the activities, the forum organized a series of seminars, workshops and training programmes. Eventually the forum was transformed into a national-level professional organization.

From Governing Body

Greetings,

We are happy to bring out the ten years activity report of KDS–Delhi. As a socio-economic research organization and a resource centre for the development of States, KDS actively works with the communities, various local government institutions, district administrations, State governments and the National government to achieve international human development standards across the country. Our ten years of operations have witnessed a major shift in the priorities of the development sector in India and the role of government institutions and non-government organizations. KDS has also undergone several changes in respect of organizational role and programmes during this period. It is our privilege to thank every member of KDS and the KDS secretariat, and congratulate them for rising up to the new challenges. All this has been made possible by the contributions of individuals, government agencies, international agencies and corporate bodies. Our endeavours need further strengthening so that the challenges of development can be shared by a larger number of development stakeholders.

Best Regards,

Dr. N.J. Kurian

Fiscal Issues and Decentralization

Seminar on 'Development of Kerala: Challenges and Opportunities'

On 14th May 2003, a national seminar on 'Development of Kerala: Challenges and Opportunities' was organized by KDS in New Delhi.

Political luminaries like Shri O. Rajagopal, Shri A.K. Antony and Shri Jaiaram Ramesh addressed the seminar at which a number of eminent economists and researchers from different parts of India participated and research papers covering macro-perspectives as well as sectoral aspects of Kerala's economy were discussed thoroughly. Various issues related to decentralized planning and devolution of powers to local government institutions were covered in one of the technical sessions. Dr. Pronab Sen, Mr. V. Ramachandran, Mr. B.G. Verghese, Mrs. Nirupama Rao, Dr. Prabhat Patnaik, Dr. N.K. Nair, Dr. George Mathew, Dr. N.J. Kurian, Dr. K.J. Joseph, Dr. Jacob John, Dr. K.P. Sunny, Mr. D.K. Manavalan, Dr. Ashok Mathur, Mr. Jiji Thomson, Dr. A. Venkataraman, Dr. G. Raveendran, Mr. P.V. Rajeev, Dr. Uma Nambiar, Mr. C.J. George, Dr. George B. Assaf, Dr. Shantha Nedungadi, Dr. C. Chandramohan and Dr. P.J. Michael made presentations in the seminar. It was felt that to expedite Kerala's development, universally identified sectors like bio-technology, co-operative health care, health tourism, etc., can be promoted without losing the relative status in the quality of life and social development that Kerala has already achieved. A cyclonic change in the mindset has to take place to move away from being the prisoners of the past in terms of attitudes, particularly towards private investments and private initiatives. The main findings of the seminar were sent to the concerned departments of the Government of India and of Kerala.

Seminar on 'Kerala's Development in a Globalised Setting: Fiscal Issues'

KDS organized a one-day seminar on Kerala Finance in order to analyze various aspects of Kerala's financial issues and to suggest remedial measures to improve its financial position which can lead to a fast and sustainable development of Kerala's economy. The seminar on 'Kerala's Development in a Globalised Setting: Fiscal Issues' was held on 2nd September 2006 in New Delhi.

Dr. Thomas Isaac, Finance Minister of Kerala, chaired the inaugural session. Dr. Parthasarathy Shome, Adviser to the Finance Minister, Government of India, chaired the inaugural session. Professor Prabhat Patnaik, then Vice-Chairman, Kerala State Planning Board, delivered the valedictory address. Eminent scholars in the fields of public finance, investment and

About 33 per cent of the State plan fund of Kerala is earmarked for local governments. Federal as well as provincial/State governments have to reduce the fiscal deficit to a reasonable level in line with FRBM Act. Fiscal consolidation is an arduous task in deficit-biased Indian democracy and States cannot revert to the heady days of borrowing and spending. There is merit in meeting the target set by legislation both in letter and spirit. However, there are several compulsions to States in curtailing expenditures of ongoing development schemes and these difficulties vary from State to State. There is a strong view among political leaders and development practitioners that we would live with a higher fiscal deficit if it is for higher infrastructure investment. In such a scenario, it will be desirable to provide some flexibility in meeting the FRBM targets. There is a challenge before Kerala to prove that the Kerala development model is not lopsided and unsustainable. Instead, its achievements in social sectors are to be matched by sustainable economic growth that needs a strong finance and prudent fiscal management.

Research on Innovation Systems and Social Inclusion in Emerging Economies and Beyond (RISSI in BRICS)

KDS has initiated the implementation of an international project entitled 'Research on Innovation Systems and Social Inclusion in Emerging Economies and Beyond' in India in 2012. This is part of a major project of Fundacao Universitaria Jose Bonifacio, Brazil, covering BRICS countries. Ayurveda in Kerala, a local patient care and treatment system of innovation and production in traditional medicine in India, is being studied as a case study of local productive and innovative system (LIPS) that promotes social inclusion. Field research, organization of an innovation panel along with a workshop and preparation of a technical report are the major activities of the project. The project is sponsored by International Development Research Centre (IDRC), Canada.

Meeting of Delhi-based Business People

A meeting of Delhi-based Keralite business people was organized on 1 November 2003. Over 100 businessmen participated. The purpose of the meeting was to assess the interest of Keralite businessmen in the KDS proposal for building up the capacity of Kerala's business populace in Delhi as a group to reckon with and to contribute to the development process of various Indian States.

Business Promotion Meeting

National Seminar on 'Health and SHG'

A national seminar on 'Role of Women-based Self Help Groups in the Execution of Rural Health Programmes of National and State Governments' was held on 8 December 2009 in New Delhi with the support of UNICEF, New Delhi.

Dr. N. J. Kurian (3rd from left) addressing the gathering

Dr. N. J. Kurian, President of KDS–Delhi, chaired the inaugural session and the welcome address was delivered by Prof. K.R.G. Nair, Senior Advisor of KDS–Delhi. The seminar was inaugurated by Dr. Prema Ramachandran, Director, Nutrition Foundation of India, and the keynote address was given by Dr. Mira Shiva, the well-known health activist.

Special addresses were given by Mrs. Kimberly Allen, Health section of UNICEF, New Delhi, and Mrs. N. Bhanusree, Mayor, Nellore, Andhra Pradesh. Dr. Prema Ramachandran in her inaugural address stated that SHGs could contribute to the substantial improvement in the rural health system of India. If women-based SHGs are given opportunities, they can make substantial contribution in the field of health. By involving rural women in enhancement of preventive care we can ensure minimum health care. The seminar evaluated the functioning of women-based SHGs in the states of Andhra Pradesh, West Bengal, Madhya Pradesh, Rajasthan, Orissa and Kerala. It identified different areas of operations of SHGs and analysed to what extent their social capital can be utilized for the execution of various rural health programmes with an emphasis on Reproductive and Child Health (RCH) Programmes.

Development of Harmonized Results-based Management (RBM) and Performance-linked Financing Approaches to Be Used during RCH-II Implementation

KDS carried out a research project on the development of harmonized results-based management (RBM) and performance-linked financing approaches to be used during RCH-II implementation. A team headed by Dr. N. J. Kurian and Dr. C. Chandramohan developed a methodology of results based on management and performance-based financing to be used for RCH II. The study drew upon appropriate applicable international experience in deploying performance-financing approaches. KDS reviewed and analysed the existing RBM approaches used in the RCH field, to highlight the strengths and weaknesses of the ongoing practices of all donors supporting RCH initiatives (World Bank, UN agencies, European Commission, USAID and DFID). The study drew upon appropriate applicable international experience in deploying performance-financing approaches. The project supported by DFID, British High Commission, was completed in December 2004.

A Study on 'Effectiveness of Panchayati Raj Institutions in Health Care System'

KDS has carried out a Planning Commission–sponsored study on the effectiveness of Panchayati Raj Institutions (PRIs) in health care system in the State of Kerala. As Kerala is among the states where the implementation of the Panchayati Raj Act has been successfully done and all 29 subjects, including health, mentioned in the Eleventh Schedule of the Constitution, have been transferred to the PRIs and their functions are clearly demarcated among the three tiers, the Planning Commission has assigned a study to KDS to capture the picture of functioning of health institutions in Kerala. The study has critically examined the structure of public health institutions and devolution of functions, funds and functionaries to PRIs in the health care system in the State of Kerala, and analysed the role of bureaucracy and assessed the impact of duality of responsibilities and controls in the health care system in the State of Kerala. It has identified the problems and deficiencies on account of duality of controls and responsibilities and suggested measures to improve rural health delivery system, and formulated an action plan for increased participation of PRIs in rural health delivery system. It has drawn lessons from the experience of Kerala, the State which has transferred its public health institutions to local government institutions well in advance, for the consideration of other Indian states, and prepared 'best practices' of PRIs in public health services in Kerala for the dissemination among various Indian States.

The study has made suggestions and action plan for improvement in the effectiveness of PRIs in the health care system in the State of Kerala. It has covered lessons for other States drawn from the effectiveness of PRIs in the health care system in Kerala with a special reference to impact of duality and role of bureaucracy. Hospital Management Committee is highlighted as a common platform for PRIs and health officials. It is a democratically constituted body that provides a platform for elected representatives and officials of PRIs and health officials to work jointly for the efficient functioning of public health institutions. It may be noted that Rogi Kalyan Samities in other Indian States are not formed based on the democratic spirit and they are not as developed as democratically run systems.

Section 5 Education and Decentralization

Workshop on 'Educational Development in Kerala: Retrospect and Prospects'

The KDS organized a two-day workshop on 'Educational Development in Kerala: Retrospect and Prospects' in New Delhi during 11–12 November 2005. Several experts including Prof. V.N. Rajasekharan Pillai, officiating Chairman of the University Grants Commission; Mr. C.P. John and Dr. G. Mohan Gopal, members of Kerala State Planning Board; Prof. Pratap Bhanu Mehta; Dr. K.P. Kannan, an eminent economist; and Mr. Roy Paul, Member, UPSC, made presentations. Dr. N.J. Kurian, Prof. K.R.G. Nair, Dr. Vasanta Patri, Dr. Jacob John, Dr. K.P. Sunny and several other experts presented papers at the workshop.

Dr. K. P. Kannan (L), Dr. Omcherry N. N. Pillai (Center) and Shri C. P. John in a 'Workshop on Kerala's Educational Development'

Some of the suggestions of the seminar are: (1) Kerala needs more educational institutions and existing colleges have to be strengthened. (2) There has to be a provision to make the expertise of the university professors and university teachers, who are doing research and availing facilities for research from national and international funding agencies, available to the undergraduate students. This is also possible by starting a four-year integrated programme in B.Sc (Honours), B.A. or whichever level may be appropriate, just like the B.Tech pattern by collaboration between the university department, postgraduate teachers in the university departments and teachers in the undergraduate collegiate education system. In the colleges in the country, there is a large number of bright youngsters who are doing research and teaching, by this two-way interaction between the post graduate research departments and the undergraduate colleges, and both the systems will get strengthened. Since Kerala is a front runner in respect of strong local governments, the PRIs and municipalities should play an important role in improving the quality of school education.

Prof. K.R.G. Nair, Prof. V. N. Rajasekharan Pillai, Dr. N.J. Kurian, Shri C.P. John and Dr. Jacob John in a 'Workshop on Kerala's Educational Development'

Monitoring and Evaluation Project on the Implementation of Right to Education Act in 15 Indian States

KDS was engaged by Child Rights and You (CRY) as a resource agency for a project on monitoring and evaluation of the implementation of the Right to

Mr. John Wood, Vice President of Indo-Canadian Shastri Institute (R), addressing the audience

Education Act in 15 Indian States. The objective of the programme was to monitor the implementation of the Rights of Children to Free and Compulsory Education Act, 2009. The study was conducted by collecting scientific evidence for review of the Rights of Children to Free and Compulsory Education Act, 2009. This national study had a sample size of 800 schools.

The covered states include Andhra Pradesh, Bihar, Gujarat, Karnataka, Kerala, Orissa, Rajasthan, Tamil Nadu and West Bengal.

KDS had provided training to the field staff of the research project and prepared the research instruments (observation schedules). Four regional training programmes were held in Delhi, Kolkata, Mumbai and Bangalore. KDS was responsible for the data management of this research project.

A Study on Education Loan

A study on socio-economic analysis of students' loans for higher education has been entrusted by NUEPA, Ministry of Human Resources Development, and Government of India. The study examined the operational issues of higher education loan such as the trend in repayment, arrears and default of repayment. It has examined whether education loan reaches the target beneficiaries or not. It has suggested measures to improve the effectiveness of student loan as a viable tool for financing higher education and recommended an action plan to popularize the education loan scheme for the inclusive growth of higher education in India. The study includes four states representing all the regions of India: Kerala, Orissa, Maharashtra and Uttar Pradesh (UP). The research team conducted field study in all these states, analysed data and prepared a detailed report stating the findings of the field survey.

The role of universities and education institutions is quite insignificant in the Indian education loan system. Education loan can be popularized with the involvement of universities, education institutions and alumni associations. There should be an enhanced and constructive role for universities and education institutions, alumni associations and banks in popularizing the loan in the country.

By all accounts, education loan has great potential in enhancing investment in higher education and India needs to redesign its current education loan system to make it an effective source of financing higher education. Accessibility of qualified students from poor and disadvantaged families to loan is to be ensured, preferably by providing interest subsidy by the government. The opportunity to join the higher education courses should not be denied at any level to any deserving student for want of funds. Low interest/subsidized interest on education loan should become part of the social culture of the nation. A proactive banking system should be in place to enhance the demand for loan. Above all, universities, other educational institutions and alumni associations should be assigned more roles in the education loan system in the country.

Strengthening of Local Government Institutions in the Implementation of Right to Education Act: Bihar, Kerala and UP in a Comparative Perspective

KDS–Delhi carried out a research study on ‘Strengthening of Local Authorities in the Implementation of Right to Education Act: Bihar, Kerala and UP in a Comparative Perspective’.

The study:

- Evolved a methodology for evaluating the role and functions of local government in the implementation of the Right to Education Act, 2009.
- Used the newly developed methodology to carry out a comparative assessment of the role, functions and responsibilities of local government in Bihar, Kerala and UP.
- Assessed the preparation, capacity enhancement and framework needed for local governments to play their role effectively in Bihar, Kerala and UP.
- Suggested the measures to improve school environment, infrastructure, teachers’ commitment, parents’ involvement and the delivery of other educational services with the support of local government.

The study was sponsored by National University of Education and Planning/Ministry of Human Resource Development, Government of India. Dr.Jacob John was the Director of this research study.

It is significant to develop a methodology for evaluating the role and functions of various stakeholders mentioned under ‘Local Authorities’ specified in the Right to Education Act, 2009. An assessment of the involvement of PRIs in the operation and management of an educational institution can be carried out using certain performance-based indicators. These indicators can be broadly divided into 13 categories. They are improved physical infrastructure of educational institutions in a panchayat/municipality area, improved human infrastructure of educational institutions due to the intervention or initiatives of local government institutions, improved physical arrangement in an educational institution due to the intervention of local government institutions, improved monitoring by local government institutions and improved participation of local government institutions, improved efficiency in resource allocation, execution of new projects in an educational institution due to the intervention or initiatives of local government institutions, and preparation and execution of an education plan by local government institutions. Other indicators are increased awareness about education due to the intervention or initiatives of local government institutions, enhanced service delivery to poor and marginalized people, fully functional and accessible educational institutions catering to poor and excluded communities, sensitized or trained local government institutions and education officials on educational issues and service delivery and preventive measures promoted by local government institutions. The performance indicators include various aspects of educational institutions like increased participation of community, decrease in dropout number, and delivery of basic amenities like toilets, drinking water and electricity to school. The other indicators are initiatives of local government institutions in organizing activities and programmes for the promotion of education and budget management of schools.

There is a need for creating positive understanding between PRIs and officials of schools and education departments. Training programme or orientation programme needs to be organized occasionally for both elected representatives and officials of schools and education departments. Government needs to take concrete steps in building capacities of elected representatives and officials of local government institution on various aspects of the implementations of the Right to Education Act, 2009.

Training on Research Methodology and Internship Programmes

Selected students with a focus on students from socially and economically backward areas and families are being trained on social science research methodology, project design and implementation. These students are from various universities including University of Delhi, Sree Sankaracharya University of Sanskrit, Kaladi, Kerala, Indian Institute of Technology, Delhi, and Maduari Kamaraj University, Tamil Nadu. The selected students are being given rigorous training in social and economic sectors and research methodology with a specific focus on research studies and action research for a period of two months. As a part of the training, they are involved in the execution of KDS's ongoing research and action research projects. Regular internship programmes for selected university students are also being held.

Rural Development

Training on MGNREGS

In Karauli district of Rajasthan trained women SHG leaders are empowered to deal with local issues independently. These SHGs are promoted by Indira Gandhi Mahila Bal Vikas Shikshan Sansthan. SHG-based paralegal workers who attended a training on Mahatma Gandhi National Rural Employment Guarantee Scheme (MGNREGS) programme organized by KDS at Shri Mahaveer Ji, Karauli, during 4–7 May 2010 and had taken up an issue of refusing job cards to deserving people under Mahatma Gandhi National Rural Employment Guarantee Act (MGNREGA) with Panchayat Secretary of Shri Mahaveer Ji Village Panchayat. In fact, there was a session on various provisions of MGNREGA in the training programme. A team of 18 SHG leaders met the Panchayat Secretary three times. The knowledge about various provisions of the MGNREGA scheme empowered SHG-based paralegal women workers to unite and force the reluctant Panchayat Secretary of Shri Mahaveer Ji Village Panchayat to issue job cards to them under the MGNREGA programme. Initially, the Panchayat Secretary was reluctant to issue job cards on certain excuses. The SHG leader elaborated and explained the relevant provisions of MGNREGA and warned him of legal action in case of non-compliance. Finally he issued job cards to all deserving applicants. In fact, the KDS training programme empowered them to avail the benefits of MGNREGA.

Vision Document for BRGF Districts in Assam and West Bengal

KDS has carried out SWOT (strengths, weaknesses, opportunities and threats) analysis of various plan units including different tiers of PRIs in the districts of Bongaigaon and Kokrajhar in Assam, and Bankura, Jalpaiguri and Uttar Dinajpur in West Bengal. It has undertaken needs assessment and priority setting through Gram Sabha and SHG networks. It has formulated a vision of development as well as strategies for attaining the vision by the PRIs through a process of interaction with stakeholders and local experts. It has developed several project ideas based on the needs assessment. It has prepared a vision document for the development of the five districts.

Kudumbasree , SHG–Local Government Partnership Programme in Kerala: Performance, Impact and Lessons for other States

KDS has carried out an evaluation study on Kudumbasree (KDMS), an SHG-based rural livelihood programme in Kerala. KDS has analysed the impact of KDMS as a poverty eradication programme and examined if it has reduced poverty substantially through effective co-operation and partnership with local governments. It has also suggested measures to improve effectiveness and impact of KDMS on poverty in view of changing national and global socio-economic scenario. It has examined the replicability of KDMS in other States of India as a poverty reduction programme through decentralized structures. The study has formulated an action plan for replicating the programme in other States of India. The detailed report is available at http://planningcommission.gov.in/reports/sereport/ser/ser_kudu.pdf

Development of an Appropriate Methodology and Framework for Creating a Database of Self Help Groups

Ministry of Statistics and Programme Implementation, Government of India, has entrusted KDS with the task of developing an appropriate methodology and framework for setting up a database on SHGs in India. SHGs carry out multiple activities in different social and economic sectors. Many State governments and government agencies have been utilizing SHGs for the implementation of several rural and urban development programmes. SHGs have tremendous potential in the planning and execution of development programmes, especially at the grassroots level. Though SHGs have become a powerful social capital in India there is a huge data gap in respect of them in various States. Different evaluation studies show that SHGs, by and large, carry out multiple activities in different sectors such as health and education. Despite these studies, most States do not have proper information about SHGs and there is a huge data gap in respect of SHGs. The project was an attempt to conduct a study on structure and functions of SHGs in Kerala and West Bengal, two states located in two different regions and having relatively strong SHG networks. The main objective of the project was to develop an appropriate methodology and framework for setting up a database on SHGs in India by studying Kerala and West Bengal. Dr. N. J. Kurian was the Director and Dr. Jacob John was the Co-ordinator of this research project.

Analysis of Data: Highlights

- It is observed that the number of SHGs in a gram panchayat in Kerala is much higher compared to West Bengal even after considering the difference in the size of gram panchayats in both the States.
- It may be noted that the size of a gram panchayat in Kerala is bigger than that of West Bengal.
- We can safely conclude that the majority of SHGs in both Kerala and West Bengal are women-based SHGs.
- It is noticed that there was an increasing tendency of forming SHGs with members of one's own caste.
- It is remarkable to note that the educational level of SHGs in Kerala is higher when compared to West Bengal.
- It has been reported that the number of above poverty level (APL) members in SHGs is quite high in Kerala in comparison with West Bengal.
- It is significant to note that community-based organizations, religion-based organizations and political parties have promoted SHGs in a big way in Kerala. However, this pattern of promotion is not seen in West Bengal.
- Most of the SHGs continue to remain unregistered both in Kerala and West Bengal.
- The intensity of micro-credit activities of SHGs is quite high in Kerala as compared to West Bengal. Similarly, the number of SHGs that provide social welfare activities to their members is quite high in Kerala in comparison with West Bengal. However, it appears that the State-level variation is quite negligible in respect of services provided by SHGs to their members.
- It appears that SHGs in Kerala are more aggressive and efficient in carrying out activities in various fields in comparison with SHGs in West Bengal.

- Both in Kerala and West Bengal, livelihood activities of the majority of SHG members are in the field of agriculture.
- Kerala has a higher proportion of graded SHGs to non-graded SHGs as compared to West Bengal.
- A majority of SHG members in both Kerala and West Bengal conduct their regular meetings on weekly basis.
- In both Kerala and West Bengal SHGs assign more-or-less equal share of time for discussing the agenda on thrift and credit activities, problems related to basic services and scheme-availing strategies.
- The result of our survey in Kerala and West Bengal provides an interesting evidence of SHGs' preference for charging a moderate rate of interest in the range of 11–12 per cent on the loan from their own pooled savings.
- There are not much State-level variations in respect of the pattern of repayment of loan from own pooled savings.
- In respect of tenure of repayment of loan borrowed, a majority of SHGs follow the policy of repayment within 4–12 months in both the States.
- It appears that the influence of peer pressure from SHG members is the main reason for timely repayment of loans, in both the States.

A Study on 'Impact of Global Financial Crisis on Employment, Income and Poverty in Kerala'

South Asia Network of Economic Research Institutes (SANEI) is a regional initiative to foster networking amongst economic research institutions in South Asia covering Bangladesh, India, Nepal, Pakistan and Sri Lanka. KDS–Delhi was selected by SANEI to carry out a study on the economy of Kerala with special reference to Kerala's strategies to overcome the impact of the global economic crisis. The objectives of the study were to assess the impact of the global financial crisis on employment, income and poverty in Kerala and to understand the effect of economic stimulus measures of Government of Kerala as well as Government of India. The study was carried out by Dr. Jacob John, Director, KDS–Delhi, under the 11th Round of the SANEI Regional Research Competition (RRC) with a financial grant from the Global Development Network (GDN). The completed study report was released by SANEI as working paper in Dhaka, Bangladesh. It is available at www.saneinetwork.net.

The study reflects upon the development experience of Kerala in view of the adverse impact of the global financial crisis. At the sub-national level, States like Kerala cannot take any long-term policy to prevent any sudden economic crisis or shock. However, they should take a long-term view of policy choices on providing protection to poor and marginalized communities. This should entail an action plan to provide skill-based education and employment and livelihood to the poor along with a proper social security system, especially to the poor in the unorganized sector. A separate stream of education should be introduced to provide skill-based training to the poor strata of society. The quality of the education system in the State needs to be improved to produce 'employable' people in large numbers. Generation of employment can be achieved in Kerala by bringing the primary and secondary sectors to the forefront of the economy. Kerala needs a sustainable industrial development process for generating employment and income.

Decentralized Planning

Preparation of District Plans under the Twelfth Five Year Plan in Assam

KDS-Delhi has been engaged by the State Government of Assam and Ministry of Panchayati Raj, Government of India, as Technical Support Institution (TSI) for the preparation of district plans for Bongaigaon and Kokrajhar districts in the State of Assam. In Assam and West Bengal, KDS has been providing technical support in the preparation of Integrated Perspective Plans and Annual Plans at various levels such as the village, gram panchayat, intermediate panchayat, zilla panchayat and other local bodies including the municipalities.

KDS, along with district authorities, has conducted workshops at the block level for the Village Level Resource Groups constituted by the PRIs comprising elected representatives, persons from civil society, academics institutions, community-based organizations and others who can contribute to needs assessment and planning for the area.

These workshops equip the Village Level Resource Groups with the methodologies for village planning. KDS provides the basic formats for collection of data for planning at different levels and also orient the planning teams to these formats. It also helps the planning teams in the analysis of the information collected using various formats and the possible convergence among the ongoing programmes and schemes.

Section 8
Capacity Building and Networking

Database of Network of Resource Persons for Local Government (NRLG)

KDS has set up a web enabled database of network of resource persons for local government (NRLG) from the States of Andhra Pradesh, Madhya Pradesh, Bihar, Rajasthan, Orissa and West Bengal (www.nrlg.org). The project is supported by the Ministry of Panchayati Raj, Government of India. The objective of this database is to facilitate the Ministry of Panchayati Raj, Government of India, other ministries and departments of Central and State governments in using the inputs of resource persons. The resource persons involved are independent writers and thinkers in the field of PRIs, independent researchers/resource persons in the field of PRIs, well-experienced former and current elected representatives of PRIs and faculties of research institutes/universities/other educational institutions working in the field of PRIs.

NRLG in India has started to become a powerful social capital. There is a great scope for utilizing NRLG as a powerful social capital, in the execution of various programmes of the Ministry of Panchayati Raj, other ministries, State government departments and agencies and even non-government agencies.

Information Dissemination through NRLG

It is an initiative to effectively address development priorities through local government institutions by tapping into the experience and knowledge of resource persons for collective problem-solving. In 2010 KDS set up a network of resource persons working in the area of PRIs and municipalities. Currently the network has over 5,000 members covering 10 states. These states are Andhra Pradesh, Assam, Bihar, Haryana, Kerala, Madhya Pradesh, Orissa, Rajasthan Tamil Nadu and West Bengal. The members are networked through a web enabled database (www.nrlg.org) and an electronic platform. Various information in the field of local governance and service delivery are being disseminated among members of the network. Sharing of ideas on problem-solving of various governance issues is the essential feature of the project. The forum discusses current issues in the area of local governance such as delivery of basic services, power of local government institutions, gender issues, environment issues, various problem solving ideas, etc. This project has benefited a large number of resource persons and PRIs in addressing wide-ranging policy, programme and implementation concerns.

literacy training was provided to a total of 400 SHG women in 2010. A booklet for SHG- based legal volunteers (SLVs), namely SLV booklet, was prepared as part of training material. It is a simplified booklet which contains various provisions of law relevant to poor women and SHG members. It contains an introduction to the role and functions of SHG members in legal awareness programmes, and descriptions on various aspects of relevant laws in simple Hindi with several examples and explanations. According to our field experience, the marginalized sections in the four districts, by and large, do not approach police stations or get any FIR registered. As a part of our Training of Trainers programme, an exposure visit of all the SHG women leaders to the nearest police station was organized. An interactive session was held between SHG leaders and police officers at the police station. The significance of FIR in accessing criminal justice and the details on how to file an FIR and the contents of the applications were explained.

SHG Legal Literacy Training Programmes

KDS has organized the following SHG legal literacy training programmes in different parts of Bihar and Rajasthan. These programmes were supported by UNDP and the Department of Justice, Government of India.

- SHG Training Programmes for Strengthening the Network of Self-Help Group Based Legal Volunteers (SLVs) in Newai, Tonk District, Rajasthan, in March 2011.

SHG Para-legal Training Programme in Nalanda

A view of training programme by SHG trainers, Tonk, Rajasthan

Visit to police station: Newai, Tonk, Rajasthan

The project has built up legal empowerment among women belonging to SC, ST and minority communities. Direct beneficiaries of the project are women from poor families and marginalized communities. Most of the indirect beneficiaries are family members of the direct beneficiaries. Co-members of the selected SHG are also indirect beneficiaries. In a nutshell, it has resulted in empowerment of women from poor families and marginalized communities. SHGs have become a powerful social capital in rural areas of the State of Bihar and Rajasthan. 'Social capital' refers to such features of social organization like trust, norms and networks that can help to improve the efficiency of society by facilitating coordinated actions. The general perception is that SHGs are formed only for economic gain. However, our experience shows that SHGs can become the agents of development in addressing the injustice behind the exclusion, deprivation and disempowerment of the poor. The social capital of women-based SHG members has tremendous potential in addressing the issues of lack of accessibility to justice among people from poor families and marginalized communities. They are in a better position to create legal awareness among other SHGs members, their families and neighbours to enable them to seek justice. SHG leaders bring grievances and legal issues of co-members, family members or even neighbours in these SHG meetings and seek remedial measures; it shows that the coverage of the access to justice programme for marginalized people can be expanded through the use of the social capital of SHGs.
